For Your Safety

Our horses are accustomed to interacting with humans. From us they never get unfair, rude or loud reactions, not to mention a beating. As a result they are open minded and trusting of every human.

But our horses also live in their own world, in a horse-group, where behaviour of a herd and hierarchy issues are not only accepted by us but encouraged.

Therefore you must be aware of their natural, i.e. wild, jumpy, flight like reactions.

Disclaimer: We assume, that all participants of this workshop appreciate the remaining risk and that everyone takes the responsibility for her/himself.

G&K HorseDream GmbH's liability is limited to malicious intent and gross negligence and limited to the amount paid for the seminar by the participant.

Leading Should Result in Following by Free Will

This exercise looks quite simple:

Four pillars are placed in the corners of the riding arena.

All participants are inside the arena.

Each participant individually leads a horse pass the first pillar, around the second one, pass the third and again around the fourth one.

We just demonstrate how to hold the rope and how to move the body.

We provide very little information, in order to give room for independence, creativity and intuition.

Then there are some more leading exercises after the first one.

During the workshop you will learn how to facilitate the exercises. You will get to know the special HorseDream® feedback concept and you will learn how to work with a powerful leadership style explanation model.

Distance And Nearness

What are the outcomes of the exercise? What does it all mean?

This is what participants came up with after they had done Distance And Nearness:

It is about

Respect

Trust

Attention

Intention

100 % presence

Coping strategies

Energy

Contact

Connection

Emotion

Body language

Body position

Performance

About The HorseDream® Philosophy

Our vision of leadership

Trust and confidence—the basis of leadership

Trust in advance, the opposite to mistrust

Seeing the good

Liking people

Expecting the positive

Emphasizing communalities, what we all have in common

Orientation towards the goal

The goal is the goal

Defining the direction or parameters, not the way towards the goal

Direction, milestones, goal

Asking questions about your own goals

Having the courage to change goals

The HorseDream® training concept is based on three pillars: respect, trust, love - for horses as well as for people. In addition, there are some basic character traits and behaviours: seeing the good, expecting the positive, emphasising the common. As far as leadership is concerned, we think that „if you want to lead, you have to be able to serve“. This also applies to both horses and humans.

In leadership, male and female energies should be balanced. It is not about the question, man or woman, but about the shares of masculine and feminine perspectives and goals.

We coach our participants through a two-day or multi-day learning process. This process is self-determined. You take with you exactly what is important in the given moment. We reduce and focus on what is essential right now.

All this takes place from beginning to end in a logical seminar structure that offers theoretical support and emotional security. Within this structure, however, we are as creative and flexible as necessary. Every single leadership seminar, every team training and every trainer workshop thus becomes a unique work of art in which the horses, the participants and we as organisers are involved.

Gerhard Jes Krebs
HorseDream founder
and EAHA President

Gerhard holds a university degree M.A. in contemporary German Literature and Political Science. He is working as an entrepreneur since 1983, started IT-Trainings in 1986 and founded G&K HorseDream GmbH in 1996 together with his wife, Karin. They both started with horse assisted leadership seminars and team training on the market in 1998 with horses as medium and catalyst.

The horse is the trainer means for us that we are in the background in horse assisted coaching and leave the training (or coaching) to the horse. This enables the coachee to experiment.

Horses need a certain amount of time to grow into the role of the trainer, and you have to support them. We have compiled a few statements from our Train-the-Trainer seminar concept that have to do with attitude - attitude in two respects: towards the horses and the people. These are not advice on how to deal with horses, but explanations on how we deal with our horses:

- We promote their self-confidence wherever possible.
- We leave decisions to them as often as possible.
- We do not expect obedience, where it is not necessary.
- We do not condition them (in the sense of if-then).

Our horses became self-confident personalities, who as trainers help people

- to build trust,
- to believe in themselves and others,
- to earn respect for themselves and respect others,
- to recognize goals - and achieve them,
- to accept challenges and overcome barriers,
- to overcome fears,
- to assert themselves without abusing power.

We teach all this in the first two days of the HorseDream Partner License Workshop. There is also a lot of background information from more than 22 years of seminar experience.

This distinguishes the HorseDream® EAHAE certification:

1. An international concept for leadership seminars and team training that can be used immediately. Prerequisite: sound horse experience and target group know-how.
2. A low time investment of two, three or six consecutive days. No basics are taught. Only the practical and theoretical tools for conducting the seminars are taught.
3. Cooperation and support in the EAHAE International Association for Horse Assisted Education with more than 300 trainers from over 40 countries on all five continents.
